1 Introduction

This document serves as partial evidence towards the the completion of Work Package 4 tasks in the Description of Work for the EuropeanaLocal project. A brief introduction to the underlying work of this list is given below.

The basic pre-requisite for getting content from local and regional MLA institutions into Europeana is the use of the OAI-PMH as a web service for querying and retrieving ESE XML data over the HTTP protocol.

The partners have followed the process laid out in the EuropeanaLocal Technical Primer document and have gone through the following steps:

1. selection of suitable content;
2. extraction from legacy databases;
3. field-mapping from standards like DC, MARC etc to ESE XML;
4. normalization of field values;
5. installation of repository software;
6. testing in content checker and finally;
7. harvesting by Europeana

The project has 28 content providers and in accordance with the goals specified in the Description of Work, all should be online by month 24 of the project.

As is evident from the bullet-point list above, the repository installation and population is one of the last steps of the content provider process. It is therefore not to be assumed that the three content providers who are not yet online are not well underway with their implementation activities.

Chapter 3 below provides an overview of the URLs of individual content providers repositories. The bulk of them are available on the public Internet but some are restricted to the IP-range of Europeana and its technical partners.

4 below provides a brief summary of the list including in-depth analysis of any deviation from the DoW as well as an outline of planned next steps and possible mitigation strategies towards the successful completion of the project.

4 Summary and Conclusions

Summarizing the facts presented in chapter 3 above we conclude the following:

- All partners have made good progress in terms of content selection, extraction and mapping to ESE XML format
- 25 out of 28 partners have installed and populated OAI-PMH repositories which are responsive on at the URLs cited in the list above
  - 23 partners have installed and populated dynamic OAI-PMH repositories
  - 1 partner has developed a static OAI-PMH repository which is file-based
  - 1 partner has installed the OAI-PMH repository but until now only populated it with test data
- 3 partners have not yet installed repositories

The partner who has until now only populated their repository with test data, Denmark, is explained by re-organization and change of collection management software at the content provider end, coinciding with the execution period of EuropeanaLocal. The current progress is however in line with the revised implementation plan and no mitigation measures are envisaged.

The Irish partner has provided a static repository – that is a static XML file complying to the ESE application profile of Dublin Core as served by an OAI-PMH getRecords request. This has been submitted to Europeana as a file upload – not through a web service. The file is however available for harvesting on the following URL:

http://www.europeanarepository.ie/xml/ena2010\_10\_041110.xml and as such is compliant with the EuropeanaLocal specifications.

The three deviations from the planned progress, partners who have not yet installed OAI-PMH repositories are:

- Cyprus Research and Educational Foundation
- Eesti Rahva Muuseum (Estonian National Museum)
- AcrossLimits Ltd. (Malta)

All three partners have re-confirmed that they are planning to implement OAI-PMH repositories in the interval of time leading up to the completion of the EuropeanaLocal project.

The Maltese partner has made good progress in establishing a Europeana branded community memory web site for Malta which will provide an OAI-PMH repository accessible from the emerging Europeana OAI-PMH harvester. No mitigation measures are envisaged for the partner at this time.

The Estonian partner has faced challenges due to tight national economy and shortage of staff resources and has been unable to complete their implementation in accordance with the plan. Commitment to the original scope and plan has been reconfirmed by the partner and potential mitigation measures include on-site visits and/or web conference based support from technical partners.

D4.4

The Cypriotic partner at the outset of the project requested a shift in the implementation time for November 2010 and this has been used as a baseline for monitoring of their progress. As for the Estonian partner, possible mitigation measures include on-site visits and/or web conference based support from technical partners.
